Vehicle Alert - 2004-2005 Nissan SUV Rear Window Spoiler Update

The International Carwash Association continues to receive reports that the rear wind spoiler located on the roof above the rear lift door on the 2004-2005 Nissan Infinity QX56 and Nissan Armada SUV has, on occasion, been blown off the vehicle in the blow-off area of a car wash due to the high velocity blowers.

Nissan Motor was contacted several months ago about the problem but they claim that their testing does not indicate that a problem exists nor that they have received any warranty claims. A recent conversation with Nissan representatives clearly indicates that until the Association has a significant number of occurrences, Nissan does not plan on changing the attachment design of the wind spoiler.

The approximate cost of the replacement of the spoiler is $400.00, including having the spoiler painted body color.

To protect the car wash owner's interest, it is being suggested that you inform your Nissan SUV customers of the spoiler concern and that if they should have their vehicle washed you are not responsible if damage should occur.

It is most important that you Submit a Report any damage issues to www.CarCareCentral.com that the International Carwash Association can impress on the automotive manufacturers that a problem does exist.
